Indexing Created by Experts in their Fields

Produced by People, Not Algorithms

The people who make the bibliography the unique resource it is:

- Index Editors are multilingual, have advanced degrees in the subjects they cover and are experienced in capturing the essential topics discussed in each item they index.
- Thesaurus Editors, who are also multilingual and hold advanced degrees, are dedicated to making knowledge findable, accessible, and inclusive.
- Field Bibliographers are specialists in their fields from around the world who volunteer to contribute citations and indexing to the bibliography.

“The MLA International Bibliography is produced by people and not by algorithms. Our indexers and thesaurus editors have the same qualifications and expertise that our users have. The indexers and thesaurus editors can apply their knowledge every day in order to help the researchers retrieve search results that are not only the most relevant for the researchers but serve as conduits to topics that the researchers themselves might not have realized could be relevant to the work that they’re doing.”

Greg Grazevich, Associate Director of Bibliographic Information Services and Editor of the MLA International Bibliography
